9th International Conference of Animal Health Information Specialists 14–17 June 2018, Budapest, Hungary

The International Programme Committee (IPC) for ICAHIS 2018 is pleased to announce that the 9th International Conference of Animal Health Information Specialists will be held June 14-17, 2018 at the University of Veterinary Medicine in Budapest, Hungary. The conference will bring together animal health information specialists from around the world, to connect in understanding the issues facing them, and to collaborate in creating solutions. Though not very large in numbers, this unique community is a cross-section of the veterinary and animal health information world, and also a gateway to larger institutions of higher education and animal health administration.

The conference will incorporate papers and posters in the following themes:

Connecting, Collaborating and Creating connecting with users, technology, disciplines, or entities, the past and present literature (historic collections and archives);

collaborating with veterinary and non-veterinary librarian colleagues, discipline faculty, organizations, institutions, exchange experiences or possibilities, or job shadowing between institutions;

creating new resources, webpages, online tutorials, courses/classes outside of and within the curriculum, spaces, makerspaces, new jobs or new positions.

Your company has been involved in the publication or provision of animal health information sources, and has been cooperating with many of the would-be participants of the conference already. We offer you a great opportunity to take part in the exchange of experiences, share your perspectives and service and product news, and elicit ideas for the development of your services relevant to this significant section of the library and information world.
